Opportunities and challenges

Renewable Energy's rapid expansion creates a shortage of employees with the essential technical know-how to operate large P2X plants. Therefore, during this transitional period, similar to biogas plants, it is essential to go out and find employees with technical qualifications who can quickly grasp the technology and operation of large commercial P2X plants.

Projects and cases

Jysk Recruitment recruits for all types of industries but has become experts in finding suitable employees for all functional areas within Renewable Energy. In this regard, Jysk Recruitment has helped many biogas plants recruit and build a professional organization, where many have transitioned from being farm facilities to industrial production. There is currently no specific education targeted towards biogas production, which means that new employees must be found from other industries with similar job functions, and this is precisely the exercise in which Jysk Recruitment excels.

Looking to the future

Companies in Renewable Energy need to focus on building an organization that can manage and develop a commercial plant together, and there is a need to quickly establish the necessary education programs in technical and scientific fields.
